Agent

Hongkong, 11th September, 1962.

once a contemporary and retrospective show of all that art and industry contribute to make woman "beautiful for ever," and created by woman herself. Fashion is capricious and feminine taste variable; the picturesque collection of exhibits illustrates the fantasies of the fair sex in all countries from the earliest ages to the present day, by the aid of that of a Venus in a professional beauty. When the Prince de Joinville returned from the South Pacific Sea, he created one afternoon a sensation at his father's court, by displaying the entire costume of a native queen, that he packed up in a snuff-box, and that her tawny majesty handed it to the Admiral prince. M. Polipot, who painted the legend of the Pygmalion for a panorama, has depicted in seven years, the history of ladies dressed, from the Federation of 17th July, 1890, on the Champ-de-Mars, down to 1892, the era of horrible crinolines and Bonaparte robes. Do you wish to know how a lady dresses herself, makes up her hair, how perfumes herself, how stillages the thousand frivolities for decorating herself? Consult the 22 yards of wall hung by paintings and engravings the loan collection of M. Faneon; there are no free mason secrets about the trifles of ladies, and they claim to have always sold side by side with that of the Continental Professional Schools, those of Austria-Hungary and Belgium especially are marvels of needle skill and of design. France cannot approach that style of work, besides, she is behind all other countries respecting industrial schools. The collections of lace, stuffs, and jewelry are magnificent. And on a glance at the latest fashions and the superlative materials and patterns, one would think that like the dead they will never return M. Klotz exhibits quite an arsenal of toilette necessities, where beauty not only "draws with a single hair," but with no hair at all. There is one work box containing not only needles and a knife which is natural, but also a "fork" a scissors have a motto, "I seek my chain." The collection of fans is interesting, one belonging to Nino de Senecio who was a professional beauty at four score; there are shown a pair of earrings said to be the first of the tokens of Napoleon on Josephine, and a "spectacle case" belonging to Marie Antoinette; since her first condemnation the "lovely queen" had no hair—of her own, so that it could easily turn white in a night or any other color if desired. She was a notorious gambler, and "at heart a rake," with all these one could be reconciled; but to have to wear spectacles like an old granny! Even Burke himself would admit that was a double on enthusiasm.

An authoritative writer in the Figaro asserts that the relations between France and England have never, since the Spanish marriage of Louis-Philippe, so strained as now. It is true that England is not considered by the French to have said her last word. She is free now to recognize any leader that promises to keep Muley-Hassan at bay; obtaining from him all the concessions she requires, then backing him up with other European nations to take the side of the Moroccan ruler. This would imply all the powers for a slice of the Moroccan cake; that form of "collectivism" is the last thing France could desire.

H. Cloud will not join the other suburban towns to corner Paris for discharging her sewage into the Seine to poison and infect all who have to drink the river water. How prevent citizens from drinking their own pollution? Lay down pipes to carry the sewage to the sea, and the land on which has been commenced, and make them blossom as the rose. But H. Cloud is out of sorts just now with every one, because the ruins of her historical palace are to be carted away, as fewer visitors will come to sight see still the number will not lessen to enjoy the grounds. There are two suburban villages, Argenteuil and Sannois, side by side, the first is cholera-stricken, the second is healthy; sanitary engineers are at work on the Seine, the other that from the river Oise. The claimer barges that convey a portion of the night soil from Paris, commence to founder in the river. Dante in his Inferno, never imagined a punishment for the wicked in such a solution—"no solitary shriek no bubbling cry," would there be heard. It appears that there are collectors of microbes or bacilli, as there are of postage stamps, and that Scientists are in the habit of exchanging their goods through the post office by means of getting letter paper. Imagine "Koch's commensals" on breakfast table, as some barren penes his morning letters over his toast and eggs? When the phylloxera invaded the French vineyards, the Government had to put a stop to entomologists exchanging "bugs."

It is some 170 years since balloons were invented if they cannot yet be navigated. Astronomer Janssen asserts that discovery is reserved for the next century; no one blames the Greeks and Romans for being ignorant of the steam boat, and they "did not know everything down in India," according to "J. P. Robinson, he"; relying on the virtue of the guide rope and the anchor, a very serious savant proposes a French balloon expedition, to plane over Mr. Etas, take notes of the eruption, of the form of the crater, and all other phlegmatic novelties.

In 1770, it was impossible to obtain a letter of credit in Paris, except at a cost of 25 per cent of the sum demanded; now the expense is but 25 centimes, the simple postage of the letter. It is to the Rothschilds this bringing down these rates of interest in Venice is due. Viscount d'Avenel has authority for stating, that in 1668 when the Baron Jas de Rottechild died, he left a cash fortune of only 800 fr. millions, not counting furniture, jewelry, and other chattel, but he left also the Prince Esterhazy paid annually 850,000 fr. taxes for his landed estates in Hungary—all ground rents.

Paris is not so distant from the Far East as many persons think; you can drive in twenty minutes to the rue de la Chine; then if you so desire, you can promenade in the rue de Japan; at the end of the street commences the rue de Siam, which is less than a Sabbath day's journey from the rue de Tonkin.

A walk England transacts with South Africa, a total annual import and export trade estimated at 400 fr. millions, the total of French commercial transactions is but 200,000 fr. In order to secure the betterment of this state of business the government intends to organize a monthly pocket service from Bordeaux to the West of Africa, to take the coast to the Cape of Good Hope, to Madagascar and Réunion.

A children's monster fair is a novelty in France; the Municipal Council allocated 30,000 fr. to entertain as many children as could be in the Bois de Vincennes—the real People's Park; 8,000 children from the city schools were invited, but 16,000 came and were not sent away; there were pantomimes and every kind of juvenile amusements, with toys and refreshments, and 200,000 children of larger growth attended as spectators, or to enjoy a picnic in the woods.

The post office will no longer help the movement of the penny Savings' banks, as to buy in postage stamps for one shilling, and good people promise to pay in 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, 70, 80, 90, 100, 110, 120, 130, 140, 150, 160, 170, 180, 190, 200, 210, 220, 230, 240, 250, 260, 270, 280, 290, 300, 310, 320, 330, 340, 350, 360, 370, 380, 390, 400, 410, 420, 430, 440, 450, 460, 470, 480, 490, 500,
